

Africa is often overlooked as a tech hub. What are some of the most significant misconceptions about African tech talents, and how are these misconceptions hindering the recognition and potential of African developers?

In what ways does Africa's infrastructural problems influence the development styles of your initiative

Ayo, I know you've been building web3bridge since 2019, can you give us a clear picture of how much the initiative has grown in just 5years?

Eric, I know you're very passionate about decentralizing the work being done in Africa with helping sow the seed in different smaller communities like ethjos, ETHAbuja .. why so?

Kakai, tell us how many universities in Kenya has web3club been able to start a club and why did you decide to go through the route of onboarding talents from the university?

What were some of the biggest challenges you faced in implementing these initiatives, and how are you overcoming them?

Are there any notable alumni or success stories that you'd like to highlight?

What has kept you committed to the mission you're working on?

The slide features a solid light blue background. On the left and right sides, there are decorative borders composed of stylized, colorful floral and leaf patterns in shades of green, yellow, and orange. Centered on the slide is the text "How can we help?" in a bold, black, sans-serif font.

How can we help?